

To Whom it may concern: I have been a subscriber to satellite radio for a year. I pay for this service, and do not think that organizations such as the NAB should be allowed to limit satellite radio's ability to offer local programming. I pay for this programming, I have a right to have access to it. Even if they were not allowed to offer it, I still would not turn to terrestrial broadcasters, as I have satellite radio, and do not listen to them anyway.
